

Hutchens, Senter & Britton Attorney Elected President of the Cumberland County Bar Association

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C., July 18, 2005 – Hutchens, Senter & Britton, P.A., a leading foreclosure and civil litigation law firm in North Carolina, announced today that Lonnie Player, Jr., was recently elected president of the Cumberland County Bar Association.

“I am honored to be elected president of the Cumberland County Bar Association,” said Lonnie Player, an attorney with Fayetteville-based Hutchens, Senter & Britton. “Cumberland County has one of the leading bar associations in the state, and together with our members, we will continue to advance the association.”

Player received his law degree from University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, his Masters Degree from the University of Texas, Austin, and his undergraduate degree from Duke University. Player is a member of the Cumberland County and American Bar Associations and concentrates his practice in commercial litigation, corporate transactions and creditor’s rights.